A reader of The Times gave today an interesting bit of information as follows: On October 22, sixty years ago, snow fell to the depth of two feet, and from that time to the next spring the ground was covered. Few farmers had dug their potatoes and apples had to be left on the ground all winter. The work of gathering the apples and digging the potatoes was done when the snow went off in the spring. Perhaps some of the older readers of this may remember the occurrence and others may have had it told them by their elders.

"They say" Eugene A. Smith started deer hunting in an automobile Friday morning, "brite" and early, yet not as "brite" and early as he expected to—in fact, just two hours later than he intended. "They say" that the eighteen mile spin that was to land Messrs. Smith and Perry at the hunting ground promptly at sunrise ended near the Bradshaw building from which point the auto was towed home. Whether or not all this is true may remain a mystery, but it is a fact that none of the friends of either gentlemen have received any venison as a result of the early start made.—Montpelier Journal.
